BUSINESS IN THE BLACK

By Charles E. Belle

Uncle Tom is Not Dead A Prayer for Sowell

"Have mercy on me, wash me, cleanse me, create in me a clean hear..." a prayer Black Americans expect Thomas Sowell to say when he meets his maker. Surely Sowell, a reputed Black American scholar, hanging his hat at the Hoover Institute for War and "peace," can decipher the siege of depression aimed at Black American out of the latest unemployment figures.

Black America going up to 14.2%, white workers going down to 6.4% for June, according to the U.S. Labor Department. David's prayer, Psalm 51:10 may not do justice for a sin so great as the rape of ones own brothers and sisters for the lust of a fex extra pennies. Bathsheba with all her beauty could not compare with a twinkle of hope in a Black child's eye.

On July 28, 1981, as published in the Wall Street Journal, Sowell said"the actual results of a decade of this controversial program (affirmative action by numerical goals and timetables) are seldom mentioned."

We submit his job as its success!- Without affirmative action programs calling for goals and a timetables to be set, some institution would never run scared and select a Black American as a senior fellow! Playing the role of a parrot for the President can be misleading to the unaware White readers of the Wall Street Journal and dangerous to the whole society.

Some people reading Sowell's article will believe White America has at last found what its always wanted - a Black American soul sold for little money, a minute amount of media limelight and the promise of eternal whiteness from the White House. (Required reading: Andy's White House Year). Whether or not the White House is hiding behind these written continuing attacks on affirmative action programs across the country is academic.

A person who would deny his own brothers and sisters, his children and their children and their children's children a chance for equal opportunity can be cut down even with the President propping him up.

NAACP Protest Administration's Plan To Reduce Affirmative Action Rules For Federal Contractors

NAACP Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks expressed grave concern about the general thrust of the Reagan Administration's proposals to relax affirmative action and anti-discrimination regulations for federal contractors, noting that "The recommendations convey precisely the opposite impression needed at this time from the President."

"It is no secret that black Americans, Hispanic Americans and other minorities have viewed with increasing alarm the drift of this Administration away from the strong and affirmative role in the civil right arena which has characterized virtually every national government since World War II, Democrat and Republican alike." Hooks declared in a statement from the national office.

President Reagan, according to Hooks, has indicated his intention to make reasonable efforts to strengthen black-owned businesses and other minority-owned business ventures. Even his newly appointed Director of the Minority Business development Agency, Victor M. Rivera, has called for increased federal support for minority entrepreneurs, Hooks further explained.

Under the proposed regulations, federal contractors with fewer than 250 employees--reveiving a contract of less than $1 million--would not be required to prepare a formal plan on hiring and promoting minorities and women, as compared with current regulations covering 50 or more employees and $50,000 or more in contracts.

The current regulations grew out of the 1964 Civil Rights act, which was originally designed to give blacks and other minorities a toehold in the multi-billion industry of public contacts. In addition,

Black Community Mass Rally

Black Folk revitalizing themselves at the Mass' Rally held at St. John's Baptist Church.

The speakers urged all to renew their faith in themselves,to remember their roots and utilize their resources. The True Vine Youth Choir set the tone with some good gospel music. Dr. Maxine Mimms, Director of Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC) Tacoma and Dr. Leon Black of Seattle OIC thanked all those who volunteered to help OIC during some pretty hectic times.

Tom Dixon, President of Tacoma Urban League said we must put away our differences and support one another.

Carlton B. Tucker, Grand Master Prince Hall Masons, said the Masonic Family has pledged its talent and all of their resources toward the betterment of the Community. He stated that it is important to register to Vote, but more importantly to Cast that vote.

Dr. Delores Silas, President NAACP stated that we have grown complacent and a lot of us have forgotten from whence we come. She said the fight is not over in Tacoma Washington.. Racism is with us everyday. The KKK is here, we must remain watchful and support our National organizations. Dr. Silas introduced a resolution honoring the late Roy Wilkins who played a significant role in the history of black people.

Dr. Alfred Davis, President of the Tacoma Ministerial Alliance gave a moving presentation, He said he couldn't forget when he was a barefooted boy in Mississippi, he couldn't forget the many terrible things that used t happen - how they had to flag the bus down, then sit in the back or stand if there were no seats. He recalled the baddreams he had of going in the front door or drinking out of the wrong fountain. He was thankful to the ones that paid dearly for change to come and make things better. He said no people are a strong as Black people because "we have had to endure everything and we are still here"- He also said we must work from a common base and pull together, whether you are a PhD or Peon, your foot bone is still connected to the ankle bone, etc...He said to paraphase his brother, "If you can't help me don't Stop me".

Rev. Leo C.Brown, Chairman of the Concerned Black Citizens, asked all persons to join in the self help campaign for Food, Clothing and Shelter by pledging $5.00 per month for one year.

Hugh Wells, the final presentator for the Black Collective - he recapitulated what had been said by the others and stated "that every thing ain't alright."

Mr. Allen Correll, Director of Human Relations, was the M.C. when he was asked by an audience participant Bobbie J. Lovelace to tell those young people present, why they (the adults) were there. He replied "Because we care about you and we want your future to be brighter."

To Be Equal

Affirmative Action Under The Gun

By
Vernon E. Jordan,Jr.

It should come as no surprise that the political shift to the right has brought affirmative action programs under attack. Congress is considering curbs on it, and a federal task force on deregulation will examine antidiscrimination rules.

The two main federal enforcement agencies are the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Office of Federal Contract Compliance. In recent years those agencies have aggressively enforced the law.

The OFCC cut off companies that violated anti-discrimination laws from federal contracts. The EEOC heavily cut its backlog of thousands of unresolved cases and went after industry-wide abuses. That strategy was more effective than the case-by-case approach of handling individual complaints, an approach that led to the backlog.

Now it is likely that offenders won't be cut off from lucrative federal contracts and the EEOC may return to the policy of emphasizing individual complaints, even though it is doubtful that it will have the resources to resolve them speedily.

Important as federal enforcement is, its main impact is in setting a moos resulting in the private sector's voluntary compliance. So a federal slowdown can only encourage those elements in the private sector that would prefer not to practice equal employment opportunities.

The rational for the federal slowdown is found in the Administration's hostility to the blizzard of federal regulations it says hamstring private efficiency and economic development.

That's an arguable thesis, but it just doesn't hold water when applied to equal employment opportunities.

If anything, a firm regulatory hand encourages private employers to act in their own best interests, helping them overcome racism within their companies.

Thanks to the civil rights laws and regulations, many American companies have been able to overcome discriminatory hiring patterns and to take advantage of all the human resources our society has to offer.

It is no accident that companies with strong affirmative action programs are also leaders in their industries and among the most efficient and profitable companies.

Many of them will continue to implement affirmative action programs, regardless of contrary signals from Washington. But companies whose hiring records are still bad may assume that the heat is off and revert to blatant discrimination.

All the talk about affirmative action being reverse discrimination is pure bunk. After years of varying degrees of affirmative action efforts, blacks are still virtually absent from high ranking positions. Blacks barely have a toehold in middle management, and are at a

"They were premised on the simple truth that doing business with the government was not a right, but a privilege, capable of reasonable regulation," Hooks added.

Hooks raised serious quesions about the proposed regulations that would remove from coverage nearly 75% of all employers who do business with the Federal Government. "The Administration's assertion that the remaining 25% of covered businesses employ more than 75% of all the minorities impacted by the existing regulations misses entirely the important thrust of the 1964 act," he argued.

"Its purpose was not to freeze black advancement at some arbitrary level, but to expand opportunities in other areas where blacks had been excluded. To eliminate the affirmative action requirements for businessesin which few blacks are now employed, is to virtually guarantee that few blacks will ever be employed in those businesses."

In concluding, Dr. Hooks warned that "The Federal Government must not be permitted to return to the period when it was the primary financier of the broad array of Jim Crow laws and customs which pervaded American society."

The proposed regulations have been published in The Federal Register and will be open to routine comment for a period of 60 days.

To Be Equal

demonstrable disvantage in skilled trades.

Only in unemployment do blacks have the edge -- black workers are more than twice as likely a whites to be out of work.

If this is the record to date, consider how much worse it would be if employers were left to voluntary compliance, without federal pressures to integrate their work force.

A sign of what that might be can be seen from the Administration's own hiring policies. Only two percent of appointments to the first 260 top sub-Cabinet posts were black; Hispanics got four percent of the jobs and women, eleven percent.

I'm sure no one set out to discriminate. But minorities, who are not plugged into the buddy system that produces jobs, get the short end. The Administration's record should convince it that is is not enough simply not to discriminate, for the results will be discriminatory

There has to be an affirmative effort to hire qualified minorities, with numerical goals and timetables to measure progress.

Such an approach is necessary to overcome segregated work opportunities that violate standards of productive use of human resources, the law, and simple morality.

Tenth Annual SCAD a Smash

By any standard, the tenth anniversary of SCAD (Senior Citizen Awareness Day) was a smashing success. The event attracted about 850 seniors, several present public officials, past officials and candidates for public office.

If nothing else, this year's SCAD program proved that by and large our senior citizens are not sitting at home, isolated and withering on the vine. Anyone who doubts this should have been at the Pavilion on August 27. They would have heard Vi Childs, a senior citizen herself and a professional entertainer, enthrall the audience with her unique singing, ad-libbing and piano playing.

They would have seen dozens of happy and animated men and women, many well beyond that arbitrary age of "senior citizen", dancing to the music of Virginia Zink and her band; they weren't dancing just waltzes, tangos and two-steps. Many were dancing the younger generation disco steps. And on the upper level, one would have viewed the most artistic booths and craft arrangements imaginable. Sherwood Villa provided coffee, a film, live music and a drawing which made things very lively on that level. The hats and goddie bags were more popular than had been anticipated.

On this tenth anniversary of SCAD perhaps it's fitting to review the SCAD program. Ten years ago, on February 13, 1971, the first SCAD program was held at McCarver Elementary School. The idea for SCAD (and it's title) was the brainchild of Bertie M. Edwards, then the director of the Central Area Senior Citizen Center sponsored by the Tacoma City Association of Colored Women's Clubs and funded by the Model Cities Program. Edwards is now the Operations Manager of senior citizens services in the City's Department of Human Development.

As Bertie explains, "the purpose of SCAD is to make our elected and appointed officials aware of the needs, many of them dire, of the senior citizens of the community, to show that these people because of their tremendous reservoir of collective experiences, skills and varied talents can still be a viable part of the community."

The first SCAD program attracted about 250 participants, including the mayor and six of the city council members. In no uncertain terms the seniors made their wants and needs known. And, as one senior said, "our position is not negotiable".

In the decade following the first SCAD program (in 1971) senior citizen services in Tacoma have grown from a single senior center with 15 participants and one craft teacher (Frances Meskimen) to a City wide program for all eligible senior citizens.

Today the City of Tacoma operates two multi-purpose senior citizen centers, two meal sites and three satellite centers. It has an Information and Assistance service and competent case managers who investigate and evaluate the needs of the seniors and help them to satisfy their needs either by direct action or by referral to agencies that can help them.

The City of Tacoma may be justifiably proud of what it is doing for it's senior citizens. We wish to thank all those people who helped to make the tenth annual SCAD a success.

Malcolms Sports Report

Congratulations Seahawks!!! The Seattle Seahawks won their first home game since 1979. The post game show says it was Zorn, but again Sherman Smith was the man on offense. Real good blocking and faking to him opened up so many alleys so someone else would get open. He ran the key plays when they were mostly needed. The special teams were magnificent. The defense was like a tree standing by the water. Keep up the good work guys! Hawks 13-Broncos 10. The next thing I want to talk about is the forming of a booster club at the Al Davies Boys Club. Everyone in the USA has heard of Tacoma in boxing. They will soon hear of some football and basketbal players that are going Pro. These guys came from the boys club. They have had problems with supplying the teams with unfiroms and equipment. Now is the time to come to their aid. If you are interested in doing something to help. Please call Roger at (206) 383-2731. A meeting will be held at the boys club on Sept. 24, 6:30 pm.

Huskies (34) Pacific (14) no contest. FOSS IS THE BOSS! Could this be a repeat of the middle Seventies. We will wait and see this year's narrows league should be a thriller. T.M. Miller (6) Cloverlead (0). A 15 yard touchdown pass from Rick Solitaire to Gary Kilbourne plus a key interception by Terry Consention and a stingy defense which held the opposition twice on the goal line was all that was needed for the victory. Cloverleaf was city champion two years ago, runners up last year. The boys club won 1 and tied old rival East side at the Jamboree Sunday. This is dit for now. Later you all.

If you have any comments or suggestions drop me a line! MALCOLM, 1019 S. 12th, Tacoma 98405.

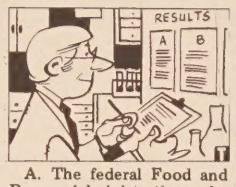
NEWS OF HEALTH

Q. Who decides which medicines shall be nonprescription and which prescription? How is that decision made?



A. The federal Food and Drug Administration decides, and it does so under specific instructions from the Congress. Each decision involves a safety judgment. If a useful medicine involves serious risk to the user, it must be dispensed on medical prescription. If the risk is less serious, and if clear labeling can instruct the consumer in safe use of the product, Congress endorses the consumer's right to self-medicate with safe and effective nonprescription medicines.

*Washington Trade Association for the makers of nonprescription medicines.

Jean Watley's Who's Who

During this past week, many people have gathered together at one place or another to examine the problems affecting Blacks as well as other poor folks in the community. Self-help, again, is the common word going around...let's help each other, let's share our resources, let's let's let's. You get the impression that maybe this time we are serious. According to many parents, grandparents and great grandparents, this formular used to work. People actually help each other.

My Grandfather,Richard Watley, used to tell me about how hard things were, but somehow, the people got together and stayed together during the crisis. This went on even when there was no crisis. Times were hard,I remember Father saying to me, there weren't many people with more than a third grade education, but we believed in God.

Just recently I heard someone say, "If God was good enough for my grandparents during all they had to go through, then he is certainly good enough for me right now." I am inclined to agree. Look at the condition of the public school system since God has been removed,-look at our government since man has become the all knowing monster. This country used to be respected by all other countries in the World, but now that we don't need God, our effect has fallen short.

Maybe now that the Man has said, "Sorry Charley we ain't into that no more" we will be force to go to the one who never changes. Just think, if we just gve the benefit to the doubt that maybe there is a God who can help us and we all asked him for help, maybe He would teach us how to help ourselves and each other...

"The best music should be played as the best men and women should be dressed—neither so well nor so ill as to attract attention to itself."
Samuel Butler

BUSINESS

Understanding the need for affirmative action programs for promoting Black Amemericans and other minorities requires a mentality apparently lacking in the make-up of the present administration. All of 19 Black Americans have been appointed out of the first 400 top Reagan Administration positions, or four percent percent versus a national Black American average of 12%, 33% is a failing grade when you are going for 100.

In the event the President believed in quotas, Black Americans, yeah, Black Republicans, would occupy over 100 more jobs just in the top administration. Naturally, these non-Sowell like appointees then could needle the nest of government jobs for other highly qualified Black America.

The aim of the administration seems somehow kin to Walter Berns, blast as written in the Wall Street Journal, August 5, 1981. Berns bellows "Every federal executive knows, or ought to, that the equal employment opportunity program has been corrupted beyond recognition..."

A thought from a resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute (think tank for out of office or retired Republican and other conservative creatures). Berns belittles the former head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Council, Eleanor Holmes Norton.

No one who can appreciate the remarkable acceleration of al women regardless of their color luring Ms. Norton's tenure hould take lightly this attack on ffirmative action programs.

Since Sowell appears but a single tool in this planned destruction affirmative action programs, perhaps we protest too much. Nevertheless, "the end of pretension, coming out of hiding," has a joy only Sowell will know when at last he sings the song of his soul, "Lift every voice and sing." And we know he can sing.
